Binahon Agro-Forestry Farm

The Binahon Agro-forestry Farm is situated in Sitio Bol-ogan, Barangay Songco, Lantapan, just along the slopes of Mt. Kitanglad, some 1,300 meters above level. It has gained acclaim as a learning site of the farmers, agriculturists, and rural development workers interested in the ropes of agroforestry and sustainable farming. The farm epitomizes the ideals of a balanced coexistence with nature, teaching those who come to stay remarkable farming techniques that are sustainable and values a harmonious life with nature and the environment. Run by the family of Henry Binahon who is himself a farmer, forester, and sociologist, the Binahon Agro-forestry Farm utilizes modern technology to improve agroforestry but maintains the traditional way of growing agricultural produce the way it was done by our forebears.

The Binahon Agro-forestry farm is laden with various forest species such as Caribbean pine trees, lawaan, falcata, abaca, and eucalyptus. Fruit trees are also planted in the area with vegetables sown in between. They raise farm animals such as carabao, horse, goat, sheep, hogs and other livestocks. They also grow exotic honeybees and tilapia.

The farm contains facilities for lodging which have already housed tourists, researchers, scientists and mountaineers whose stay at the Binahon Agro-forestry Farm is an enjoyable learning experience.
