Tribal photos

Dean C. Worcester (1866 - 1924) was an American zoologist, public official, and authority on the Philippines. From 1899 to 1901 he was a member of the United States Philippine Commission; thenceforth until 1913 he served as secretary of the interior for the Insular Government of the Philippine Islands. In 1910, he founded the Philippine General Hospital, which has become the hospital for the poor and the sick. Many of his tribal photographs from the Philippine Islands are held by National Geographic and the University of Michigan.

An Ifugao warrior poses with a shield and spear for a portrait. (Northern Luzon, Philippines. 1910's)
A portrait of a Bagobo woman (Davao, Mindanao, Philippines. 1910's)
A Tingian man plays the nose flute. (Luzon Island, Philippines. 1910's)
Bontoc Igorot headhunters hold brass gongs with human jaw handles. (Luzon Island, Philippines. 1910's)
Ifugao girls posing with their pipes are tribal dancers. (Philippine Islands. 1910's)
A Tinggian tribesman wears a waterproof cape made of plaited straw. (Northern Luzon, Philippines. 1910's)
