

Your Wedding In the Catholic Church

INTRODUCTION

We, as the Catholic Church of the Diocese of Green Bay offer you warm and heartfelt congratulations on your engagement! This is a wonderful and exciting time for you as you plan for your new life together! It can often be scary and overwhelming as you begin to look at all the planning and preparation that goes into planning your wedding day. This guide is designed to assist you as you prepare to celebrate your marriage in the context of the Christian community. It is our hope that you will take the time to talk and pray together as you read and reflect on the material presented here.

VALUES VS. TRADITIONS

Many of us have dreamed of our wedding day since childhood. We have imagined the beautiful dresses, the white runner clothing the center aisle of the church, and that “special song” playing in the background as guests gather. While the thoughts are sentimental, the Church asks us to focus on faith and the lifelong sacrament you are about to celebrate. As a faith community, we often confront cultural customs and expectations that are contrary to the values we hold as Christians. You have chosen to be married in the Catholic Church. This choice means that you are being guided by the values embodied in the life of Jesus Christ. Values of simplicity of life, honesty in relationships and within ourselves, caring for the poor and the needy and being aware of those who are less fortunate than we are central to a Catholic wedding celebration. Societal pressures and consumerism should not have more influence on your celebrations than the Christian values we are all called to embrace.

We can all name several traditions associated with weddings. “It’s bad luck for the bride and groom to see each other before the wedding.” “The bride has to wear something old, something new, something borrowed and something blue...” Many of these traditions are quite old, and their meanings have been lost. Some traditions portray attitudes toward the woman or man you may not want to associate with yourselves because they don’t represent your values, or the mutuality of your relationship. When discussing traditions like the white carpet, children in wedding parties, or hiding from each other before the wedding, do some research. Find out why those traditions were started, and if they are traditions you wish to perpetuate.

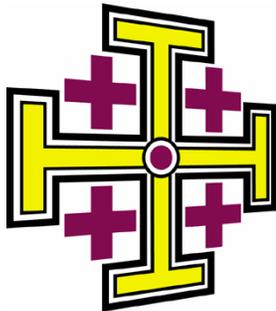

THE MINISTRY OF MARRIAGE

You may not have thought of marriage as a ministry before, however, it is surely among the most beautiful and powerful. The faith and love you have for each other, grounded in God’s unconditional and transformative love for you is a tremendous gift, and cries out to be shared. Marriage is a call to encourage, support and love one another, and in doing so, build up the kingdom of God. Your wedding liturgy is a symbol and sign to the beginning of that ministry. The church celebrates with you, and sends you forth to be instruments of peace, justice, healing and love to each other, your children, and to the world.

YOUR WEDDING LITURGY AS THE PRAYER OF THE CHURCH

As you begin preparing your wedding liturgy, you will discover that it mirrors, almost exactly, the liturgy we celebrate as Catholics every Sunday. Therefore, the music and liturgical ministers you choose closely mirror what would be appropriate for any other liturgical celebration. This isn't simply "the bride's day," or "the couple's day," to do whatever they would like, but a day of celebration for the entire church. When you choose to marry in the church as a member of a parish community, you are asking your parish community to support you and celebrate with you, not only on your wedding day, but through the course of your married life.

MASS OR LITURGY OF THE WORD?

The first thing you need to do is determine whether you will exchange your vows during a Mass, or during a Liturgy of the Word service. Some points to consider:

- ❑ What is our relationship to the Sunday Eucharist?
- ❑ Do we regularly celebrate with our faith community on Sunday?
- ❑ Have we been away from the community's prayer?
- ❑ Have we committed ourselves to returning?
- ❑ Will most of our family and friends be able to participate in the eucharist if we have a Mass?

In light of your answers to these questions, ask yourselves: Is Mass or a Liturgy of the Word the better context for our celebration of marriage? Some people think that a couple isn't really married unless they are married within a Mass. This simply is not true.

If one of you is not in communion with the Roman Catholic Church (and so will not be able to share in communion if the wedding is celebrated during mass), you may want to consider what this means.

Who will your guests be? Is the celebration of the Eucharist the best way to help them be with you and pray for you at your wedding? If many of your guests are not Catholic, you may wish to consider celebrating your wedding in a Liturgy of the Word.

Be open and honest with those from your parish who are helping you prepare for your marriage, and make the decision which will provide the best context for prayer and celebration.

LITURGICAL MINISTERS AT YOUR WEDDING LITURGY

Whether you choose to marry during a Catholic Mass, or during a Liturgy of the Word service, it is imperative that the ministers you choose to proclaim the scriptures, lead the assembly in song, and distribute communion (during a Mass) are people with experience and training in those ministries. You may have family members or friends who are trained as lectors, eucharistic ministers or liturgical musicians who would be happy to be of assistance to you on your wedding day. If not, check with your parish about ministers who would be able to help. The invitation to proclaim the readings, lead the assembly in song, or distribute communion should not be based solely on friendship or family ties, but on experience and training so that these ministries are carried out comfortably and competently.

Hospitality Ministers

You have invited your guests to joyfully celebrate your marriage with you. It is important to set that spirit of joy and celebration early by warmly greeting and welcoming your guests. Choose ushers and greeters who are pleasant and hospitable. You may even choose to welcome your guests yourselves before the wedding. Also, consider how you seat your guests, since there is no liturgical norm for separating the bride's family from the groom's family.

The Bride and Groom

You, as bride and groom, have a special role in ministering to the assembly on the day of your wedding. Your guests, as the voice of the Church, share with you their wisdom and support as you begin your journey into marriage. It is your role to welcome this gift as you welcome them. This spirit is not reflected very well in the practice of the bride and groom not seeing each other before the wedding ceremony. This custom began at a time when families arranged marriages to cement family alliances. The bride and groom were seen as property rather than people, and kept apart so that the evil spirits would stay away from at least one of them and the marriage contract would be successful. Consider whether this is a tradition you wish to perpetuate. Instead, you may wish to set aside a special place to see each other before the wedding, and share a few moments together before greeting the guests you have invited to celebrate, support and pray with you.

The Assembly

Most of the guests you have invited to your wedding are people who have supported and encouraged you through various times in your life. Their presence with you on your wedding day is also one of faithful and joy-filled support. Your wedding liturgy belongs to more than just the two of you. It is a celebration of the entire church. The wedding liturgy isn't a "spectator sport" where your guests passively watch what happens. Rather, it is a joyous celebration that invites the full and active participation of the assembly that has come to support you. Be sure your wedding worship aid includes an outline, or order of service so people can easily follow and participate at the appropriate times. If possible, include the music that will be sung as well. More will be said about this later.

THE ORDER OF SERVICE

When choosing the readings, prayers and music for your wedding celebration, it is helpful for you to be familiar with each part of the service and how the rites and prayers all fit together. You will find planning sheets at the end of this booklet which will outline a ceremony for both a Mass and a Liturgy of the Word. After reading through the following sections, your presider and musicians can help you complete the form.

The Entrance Rite

The primary purpose for the entrance rite is to gather people together for worship. There are several ways this can happen. Often, liturgy (whether Mass or a Liturgy of the Word) begins with a greeting and gathering at the doors of the church, and followed by a procession to the sanctuary of the church. This is certainly true at a wedding. Questions you'll want to ask yourselves: Who will participate in the entrance procession? Will parents escort the bride and groom or will they enter as a couple? Will the lectors and presider also take part in the procession?

After the entrance procession there is often a gathering song which continues to unite the assembly, followed by a greeting from the presider. You, as a couple, may also wish to extend a few words of welcome.

The Liturgy of the Word

After coming together and being called to worship, the assembly is seated and the readings are proclaimed. The scripture readings tell of God's love and power at work in human history, and how we are to live as God's people. For this reason, readings from sources other than the scriptures are not permitted during the Liturgy of the Word. Again, a person or people who have been trained in their own parish should be selected for this ministry. The pattern of scripture readings is:

1. a selection from the Old Testament
2. a responsorial psalm (usually sung)
3. a selection from the New Testament
4. a sung Gospel Acclamation
5. a selection from one of the Gospels

A list of appropriate scripture readings can be found at the end of this guide. The presider's homily follows the proclamation of the scripture readings.

The Rite of Marriage

The primary focus of this rite is the exchange of vows between two people. There are a variety of texts offered for this exchange to represent the Church's belief about marriage. You and your partner may wish to read through the various options and decide which one best suits you. These are available from your parish priest or deacon who will be presiding at your wedding.

The exchange of vows is placed in a special series of events. There is an introduction, a statement about your freedom and willingness to enter freely into marriage, and your willingness to bring up children. Next, you exchange your vows, then rings, and the marriage rite ends with the General Intercessions, which are prayers for the Church, the world, for all married couples, and the two of you.

The Eucharistic Prayer

If you are exchanging your vows during a Mass, then the service continues with the preparation of the gifts, and the eucharistic prayer. There are parts of the eucharistic prayer that are meant to be sung, just as at Sunday Mass. These parts include the Holy, Holy, the Memorial Acclamation and the Great Amen. Check with your musicians for appropriate and familiar settings of this.

The Lord's Prayer

Whether you are having a Mass, or a Liturgy of the Word, this is a prayer in which the entire assembly participates. Some Christian traditions have the Lord's Prayer sung by a soloist, however, in the Catholic tradition, it should be recited or sung by all.

The Nuptial Blessing

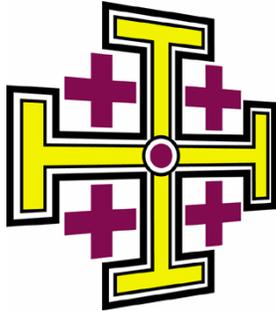

There are many forms for the nuptial blessing. There are also many places in the service when it may be prayed. The texts are both prayers of intercession as well as prayers of hope for the two of you. Check with your presider and musicians as to how and where this blessing will take place.

Communion

If you are exchanging your vows during a Mass, then you should select an appropriate communion processional song that can be easily sung by the assembly. Several suggestions are listed in the back of this guide. Music with a eucharistic theme, and a simple refrain are best.

The Dismissal

As the liturgy concludes, the couple and the assembly are blessed. This conclusion serves as the bridge between the marriage liturgy and any ceremony that follows. You may want to discuss how this transition will take place. Will you close with a hymn of praise, or an instrumental recessional in which the ministers depart?

MUSIC AT YOUR WEDDING LITURGY

Music is a basic and integral part of Catholic Worship, and therefore also for your wedding celebration. Whether you exchange your vows during a Liturgy of the Word or a Mass, music is not a frill, but an important and basic element that cannot be overlooked when planning your wedding ceremony. There are parts of the celebration that need to be accompanied by music, and the most important times are those for congregational song. Unfortunately in our recent history, this is usually the last type of music that couples consider. Allowing an organist, pianist or soloist to perform all of the music in your wedding is not compatible with Catholic Liturgy. Planning music in which the entire assembly can take part is a vital requirement when planning music for your celebration. It is important that the music fit the context of faith and dignity of the occasion. The texts should speak of a Christian concept of marriage, not focus on a romantic one. Every generation has its love songs, and some of them are great music. However, while they may have a place in your wedding day, it needs to be planned outside of the wedding liturgy.

It's also important to remember that your wedding day belongs to more than just the two of you. Those who have come to share the day with you want and deserve the opportunity to help you celebrate by lifting their hearts and voices in song. Let them be more than passive – let them celebrate with you, and select music to help them do that! Choose songs and refrains they can sing. By doing this, you give the assembly a sense that this is a celebration of joy where everyone can participate.

Selecting Your Musicians

Very often, parishes have a list of their own musicians who have been trained and will be happy to assist you in planning and ministering the music for your wedding. In accord with the primary focus of the celebration, all instrumentalists and vocal musicians should fulfill their roles as ministers of the liturgy, and their location in the church needs to reflect this. It is also important that those serving as musicians for your wedding be truly competent. This competency includes a thorough understanding of the structure of the Catholic wedding liturgy. Too often, friends or relatives of the couple are asked to serve as musicians out of friendship rather than competency. You will also need to check with your musicians as to what their fee is, and when they would like you to remit payment to them.

Selecting Your Music

The Church has set forth guidelines regarding the music in any liturgy, not just weddings, so the music you choose for your wedding should be evaluated in the same three areas: liturgical, pastoral, musical.

- ❖ Liturgical: Is the music appropriate to the liturgy and celebration? Songs which are appropriate for the reception or dance, or songs that originate from movie soundtracks, Broadway shows or top 40 radio are seldom appropriate for liturgy.
- ❖ Pastoral: Does the music allow for the assembly's participation when appropriate?
- ❖ Musical: Is the music of quality and will it be done by competent musicians? Is it easily singable by the assembly?

Some music suggestions can be found at the end of this guide.

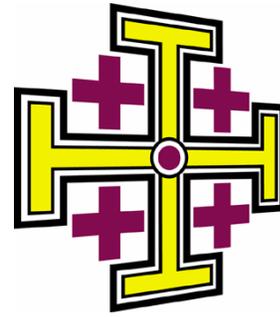

LITURGICAL ENVIRONMENT AND DECORATIONS

You may already have some ideas about decorations for your wedding, but be sure to check with the parish to see if they have any policies on decorations before you make your plans. There may already be plants, flowers, or other decorative objects in the church depending on the liturgical season and time of year. You will want to check with someone at the parish to find out what kind of environment will already be in place at the time of your wedding. Always bear in mind that the decorations in the church should compliment the assembly's celebration, and not hinder or get in the way of it.

The placement of floral decorations is of utmost concern. There are to be no flowers or plants placed on the altar or ambo. Containers and stands should be placed in appropriate areas, so as not to obscure the altar, ambo or chairs for the presider and couple.

WORSHIP AIDS

Many couples prepare worship aids to help guide people through the liturgy. The main purpose of a worship aid is to assist the assembly's full, conscious and active participation in the liturgy. It is more than simply a theatre program displaying a cast of characters. The format and typesetting of the worship aid should be easy to read, and it should include any music that the assembly will be singing. If the parish has a hymnal, you can list the titles and hymnal numbers. If not, check with your parish musician or music director for copyright information that will need to be included.

PHOTOGRAPHY

Most couples today choose to have photographers and/or videographers record their marriage. Many parishes have guidelines that your photographer and/or videographer need to follow, such as staying in one place throughout the ceremony, or whether or not a flash may be used. If you are having pictures taken before the ceremony, allow enough time before the wedding starts for relaxation and prayer. If you are having pictures taken after the ceremony, be sure that you are considerate of any other event that may be taking place after your wedding, such as an afternoon Mass, or another wedding. Be clear on the time limits for use of the church for your ceremony and photos.

FINAL THOUGHTS

We hope this booklet has assisted you in creating a liturgy which reflects both the prayer of the Church, as well as the festivity and commitment you want for your wedding. The following pages will help you select readings, music, and put together your order of prayer for your worship aid.

Best wishes to you as you honor the tradition of the Church and develop a wedding celebration that is uniquely your own.

GUIDE TO PLANNING YOUR WEDDING MUSIC

In this section, we have provided a list of appropriate music for the various parts of your wedding liturgy. Before each segment is a brief explanation of what happens at that point in the liturgy. Music Selections marked with a number correspond with the recording When Christians Marry, a compact disc produced by the Archdiocese of St. Paul and Minneapolis. This compact disc may be rented from the Diocese of Green Bay Liturgical Music Office for $5 per week (920-437-7531 ext. 8276), or purchased directly from the Archdiocese of St. Paul and Minneapolis for $20 (651-290-1625).

The selections listed are accessible to all professional parish liturgical musicians. This is not a comprehensive list! Your parish music director will be able to assist in determining whether or not a piece not on this list is acceptable. You will also want to consult your parish hymnal, as it, too, has many songs that would be appropriate for your wedding celebration.

Processional/Recessional Music

The purpose of the processional music is to unite and focus the assembly at the entrance of the presider, any liturgical ministers, wedding attendants and the bride and groom. It is preferable to have only one processional song, as it promotes the unity of the celebration. However, if you desire more than one processional piece, consult your parish music director to assist you in choosing an appropriate combination. Before the processional, you may want to select appropriate prelude music to be played and/or sung as your guests arrive. Suggestions for this can be found later in the section entitled Solos and Other Assembly Songs. The following Suggestions are also appropriate for recessionals (leaving the church).

- | | | |
|-----|-----------------------------|----------------------------|
| 3. | Trumpet Voluntary | Jeremiah Clarke |

| 10. | Canon in D | Johann Pachelbel |
| 11. | Trumpet Voluntary | John Stanley |
| 12. | Trumpet Tune | Jeremiah Clarke* |
| 13. | Ode to Joy | Ludwig van Beethoven |
| 14. | Saint Anthony Chorale | Attributed to Joseph Haydn |

*The composer is erroneously identified as Jeremiah Clarke on the recording. The composer is Henry Purcell.

Gathering Songs

After the entrance procession, couples may choose to sing a gathering song to unite the assembly in prayer. While a gathering song isn't required, it is particularly helpful when families come from different Christian backgrounds, again as a unifying agent for the assembly.

Responsorial Psalm

It is most appropriate that the responsorial psalm be sung. The following pieces, as well as most responsorial settings of the psalms listed on page seven, would be appropriate. The Psalm follows the first (Old Testament) reading, and is led by the cantor. The cantor intones the refrain, the assembly repeats it, and the cantor sings the verses. It is important that the text be a psalm; a solo or other sacred song may not be used.

Gospel Acclamations

Before the Gospel is proclaimed by the presider, an alleluia is sung by the cantor and assembly. If your wedding takes place during lent, you will need a lenten gospel acclamation that doesn't include an alleluia. Your musician will be able to suggest something appropriate.

Preparation of the Gifts

If your ceremony is taking place during Mass, then you may want to select a piece to be sung by the assembly or a soloist during this time. Bear in mind that without a collection, the time is short, so select a piece that can be ended easily. If you choose to take a collection for a local food pantry or charity, the piece may be longer.

OTHER LITURGICAL CONSIDERATIONS

Consent, Exchange of Vows, Exchange of Rings

There are optional procedures and texts for the exchange of vows and rings. Check your wedding planning book, or consult with your presider to determine which options will best suit you.

General Intercessions

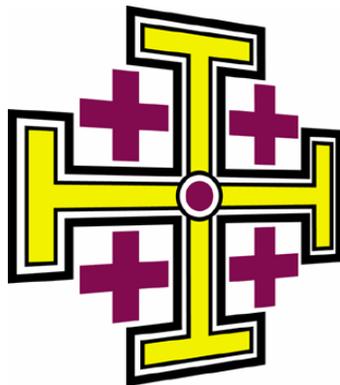

The intercessions are prayers for the Church, the world, the poor, you, and your friends and family. Decide if you will write your own, or use the ones provided in your wedding planning guide or the wedding rite provided by your presider. Who will you want to remember and pray for in a special way? Remember, while we have much to be grateful for, the intercessions are prayers of asking, not thanking.

The Preparation of the Gifts

While many couples don't take a collection during their wedding Mass, you may want to consider including one, and donating it to your parish's social concerns committee, a local food pantry or a favorite charity. Maybe in your worship aid you can ask people to consider donating the amount they may spend on a beverage at the reception. In this way, you and your guests are reminded of Jesus' care and love for the poor and less fortunate.

The Nuptial Blessing

Which form of the Nuptial Blessing will you use? Will it be prayed by the presider alone, or will the assembly participate? Will it be spoken or sung? Your presiding minister can help you with this decision.
